THE CAPITOL .- The contemplated change in this great national edifice is daily attracting more and more of the public attention, and there is anxious suspense on the subject. Nevertheless, we would not, if we could, urge the President to any haste in the matter. There are many excellent plans before him from which to choose, and if the building is to be altered, it may be he can do no better than adopt some one of them. For our own part, however, we would not, unless constrained by the act of Congress, give our assent to the alteration of a single essential feature in the external appearance of the old edifice; but would preserve the integrity of its ancient and majestic proportions. The adaptation of its interior to appropriate purposes would not prove difficult, and the construction of two detached wings, without domes, yet in keeping with the main structure, and adapted severally for the respective uses of the Senate and House of Representatives, would prove at once the most beautiful, the most convenient and the most imposing arrangement that could possibly be made.

We of course offer no professional or experienced opinion; but have in reflection grown familiar with this plan as a thing of reality, and see, or fancy that we see, grace and beauty in its every aspect.

But the President will act from knowledge, and after great and laborious examination and reflection. In the wisdom of his decision we are prepared to acquiesce; yet we trust it shall not appear presumptuous in us to remark that the design of the present Capitol was made by Thornton, under the direction and supervision of Washington; that it was constructed by several of the most distinguished artists of the times-men whose places may not again be supplied, and whose memory demands that their work shall survive them and the age in which they have lived. Does this edifice afford no record of our earlier history worthy preservation? Does no association hang around its walls that can preserve it from every evil but the slowly corroding hand of time?

How beautiful would its massive form appear between the modern chambers of legislation that should be reared to guard and protect it! thirty-two poles, so that the enlarged battery Would not its present rotunda form an admirable vestibule for the two chambers of Congress, while its spacious halls might be converted to at the sum of $27,152, and is to complete the the uses of a vast library, galleries of art, and other kindred purposes? It is not too large for serves the right to dump, in the space of the these uses, and is infinitely better adapted to them than could be any buildings in our power to construct for long, long years to come, if

Let, however, ample space be provided in the new halls to accommodate not only vastly increased bodies of legislators, but the many citizens, male and female, who will always, with justice, claim the privilege of hearing the discussions of our national Legislature. One hundred and fifty feet by seventy-five should be the least dimensions of the House of Representatives, with still greater space for visiters in the galleries, where the seats should be ranged in the manner of an amphitheatre.

THE DEATH OF CAPTAIN CULVERWELL .- We regret to announce that the gloomy forebodings with regard to the fate of this gentleman, who left this city some two years since for California. have been fully realized. He was one of the company that left with Capt, Bruff, and, with all the rest, undoubtedly looked forward to a successful termination of his undertaking. Until within a day or two nothing had been heard from him beyond the Great Salt Lake. But from lately, says a New York paper, there were no for a good-looking brother. Enterprise, spirit, "Trustees of Donations for Education in Line his long silence, his friends have for some time less than one hundred and ninety-six Sullivans, and ability are expressed in its every column, had fearful anticipations with regard to his and ninety-five Shays, in the Canal street lodg- and Lockport will thrive all the better for its safety, which from the last accounts prove to ing-house. They were all tenants of the Mar- presence. have been but too well grounded.

It seems that some time in January of 1850, to Boston. he, in company with Wm. L. Manly and six or eight more, left the Salt Lake for California; three of the company only arrived in safety, while Captain Culverwell, together with the others, perished on the plains some eight hundred miles from San Francisco. Thus has another passed away from our midst, while seeking the great western El Dorado-leaving behind him a family to mourn for one who shall never return.

JUST AND GENEROUS .- One night, some few weeks ago, the roof of the dwelling of Jas. H. CAUSTEN, esq., on F street, was discovered to be on fire: and, as we then stated, but for the presence of Mr. Jno. P. Hilton, a watchman at the Treasury building, would in all probability have led to the destruction of that and other valuable property. Mr. Hilton's clothing suffered not a little in his hazardous work, but that was a small matter, in comparison with the service he so cheerfully rendered. A day or two ago, Mr. Causten met him on the street, and thanked him for his kind and timely aid, and, as he shook hands with him, pressed the price of a good coat into his palm.

The firemen of our city are not mercenary, but remembrance in this wise, of any damages they may sustain in the performance of duty, is no more than just, however unusual, and will not fail to be rightly appreciated by them.

THE PATENT OFFICE.-The Commissioner of Public Buildings has, with characteristic sagacity, availed himself of the opportunity afforded by the presence of several distinguished archi-Office Building, now in course of erection, as to the adequacy of the external walls to sustain the arches of the gallery. The commission appointed for this purpose consists of Chas. U. Walter, of Philadelphia; A. B. Young, of Boston; together with R. Brown, an able and intelligent contractor and builder, of this city. It is understood that a report of their investigations will be made to the Commissioner to-day.

LARGE HAIL. - The St. Louis Republican, of the 25th ult., states that during a great storm at Kushville, Ill., on the previous Wednesday, very large hail-stones fell, and that some of the humps measured from ten to fifteen inches in circumference, and many weighed over eight ounces. The Republican is a truth-telling paper, but we do not believe in this story.

LIVING RESPECTABLY. - A gentleman the other day called at the dwelling of an amiable but debt-owing citizen, and turned the knob of the door to enter, but found that some one expecting his visit had already turned the key. He then rang the bell, and after a few minutes heard, or fancied that he heard, some whispering voices above him. On looking up, he saw the lady and her curly-haired little daughters holding the shutters of the upper windows partly open, and looking down upon him with something like a smile of triumph on each face. "Madam," said he, "is Mr. S ___ at home?"

"No, sir," was politely responded. "Will he soon be at home?" he continued.

"Yes, sir, very soon, I think." "Then I would like to step in and wait his coming."

"Oh, I think you tried that before you rang, sir.

"Ah, madam, I see your husband's castle is too well guarded; good morning."

"Will you not let me know when Mr. Smay expect you to call again? He may be at home, you know!"

"No, no, madam; my favorite time for calling is when I am not expected." "Then, sir, you must go to some other house;

here you are always looked for, I assure you." "But I am very sorry it is as an unwelcome guest." "Oh no, you are not unwelcome, if you Good morning, sir."

The gentleman bit his lip and departed, and the lady pouted hers, and said it was a shame that these common trading people would be so unreasonable and impertinent as to try to ateven half worn out-one could not enjoy things in this way!

Her husband is ambitious, and is said to be looking up in the world-but how apt people are to be going down at the same time.

SILVER IN PENNSYLVANIA .- A mine, it is said, has recently been opened about two miles from Phænixville, Chester county, which yields about thirty-three ounces of pure silver to the ton, and fifty per cent. of lead. The Westchester Jeffersonian says that the whole valley of the lead, copper, iron, and coal.

THE BATTERY IN NEW YORK .- Its present size, the Sun says, is ten acres, three rods, and will contain twenty-four acres. Mr. Henry Concklin is the contractor for the enlargement, work within three years. The corporation reproposed enlargement, all street rubbish and coal ashes that may be taken or removed from wards of the city, so that it will save by this means treble the amount named in the contract.

LEAVES OF MUSIC .- Mrs. ANDERSON, on Pennsylvania avenue, between 11th and 12th streetswhose store every body should visit and patronise-has kindly presented to us some most beautiful music, including "The World's Fair Polka," by Wm. Vincent Wallace, accompanied with a beautiful engraving of the Crystal Palace: "The Merry Sleigh Ride Gallopade," by Muller; "The Cradle Song," by Wallace; "Were I with Thee, on yonder Heights," by Schonenberg; and "The Mountain Daisy," by were very feelingly depicted by the fair lectu-Linley;-possessing chords harmonious as ever rer. blended in the parlor hall, and embellishments

THE CHAMPION.—It was the desire of Captain Page to make a pleasure excursion upon his new boat, with a party of our citizens; but the urgent necessity of sending her to Baltimore, to enter upon her sphere of duty, rendered it impossible. JUSTICE TO THE REPUBLIC .- After the Pontifical authorities, by means of foreign troops, had regained possession of the city of Rome in the summer of 1849, they appointed a commis-sion to examine the accounts and registers of the republican city government. That commission made its report, and in it are the following words: "When we undertook to examine the expenditures of the first six months of 1849, which include the period of republican administration, we supposed we were entering upon a perfect labyrinth; but to render homage to the truth, we must declare that we have found nothing which was not regular, and nothing which was marked by an arbitrary character. To this, says the Comere Mercantile of Genoa, is tects, to make an examination of the Patent to be added the fact, that the republican city government left in the treasury, at the moment of its resignation, the sum of $56,000, notwithstanding the heavy expenses of the siege.

The New York Tribune remarks: "Probably the Courier and Enquirer will see in these facts a new proof that the republic was an illegitimate and plundering affair, which had no right

MRS. E. OAKES SMITH'S LECTURE ON THE NEW DRESS.—Hope Chapel was early filled last evening by a select audience, drawn thither by the announcement of Mrs. E. Oakes Smith's Lecture on Dress, and its relations, aesthetic, hygenic, and social. The lecturer read her remarks, seated, in a clear but not loud voice, and with admirable intonation, and was frequently interrupted with tokens of approbation. The present dress was deemed inconvenient and unbecoming, from its minuteness of detail and the time and expense bestowed upon it; and more than all, from its effects in engendering disease. Not only comfort, but health, and consequently beauty, the lecturer deemed, demanded an immediate reform; for, where can there be beauty without health, and who ever heard of a sickly Venus, or a consumptive Juno?

Woman is at present a creature of the sunshine: she must consult the fashion, and abjure comfort for outward adornments. As a schoolgirl, the sound of the north wind, the rain, and the sunshine, and the glad face of nature, filled her soul with exultation, and her toil was rewarded with health and oceans of life and freshness. Why must she be compelled to recede from the elasticity and hopefulness of the carlier days? Why may not the rain and sunshine of her early years be also the rain and sunshine of her maturer life? A woman should not fear the air or water; she grows fresh and beautiful from both. It becomes, then, a philosophical consideration, in her choice of dress, she should adopt the best substitute for the purposes of locomotion in all kinds of weather. It matters little what shall be her in-door gar ments; she needs a costume for the street, would only leave that horrid execution at home. which must be alike convenient and unexpensive. Do this, (continued the lecturer.) the sake of health, comfort, and beauty. a country like ours, if anywhere, woman should be absolved from foreign influences in the ordering of her dress. If her habiliments please those of her household, what matters it if her tach a houseful of rich furniture before it was course be approved or disapproved by a press or two, or if it encounter the sneers of a superficial foreign traveller. She should spurn the subordinate and ape-like submission to foreign usage, and that style be adopted which befits the manners of a republic. It is idle to talk of equal rights on the one hand, and then ask, apon the other, what we shall put on. Mrs. Smith continued: I have said that health, comfort, and beauty demand this reform. see what constitutes that reform. Woman does not, though she is charged with it, covet the coat and pantaloons of the other sex. God forbid! No, gentlemen; she pities you, quite as much as herself, for your unbecoming costume. Schuylkill teems with mineral wealth, such as She can do better. In the first place, she is in most costumes shorter than man, possesses a more rounded bust-a more delicate organization. A woman likes to be known as a woman, and the occasional adoption of male costumea practice punishable by law, (though the lecturer did not believe that either man or woman was made better by the enactment,)-was but an exception to this rule. The lecturer considered a new declaration of human rights to be greatly needed. She rebuked the tyranny of fashion's whims, and made a moving appeal in behalf of the toiling and degraded classes, whose incessant labors furnished the rich trappings and finical adornments of luxury. She knew no high and the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth no low; no upper ten nor lower ten. The time has come when genius can command the only patent of nobility. The change she advocated was not for the wealthy only, but for the poor and the laboring thousands. She believed it would enhance their comforts, improve their vigor and healthfulness, and produce substan-

"The amount of money expended in New York State in the last four years, for plank and railroads, is nearly forty millions, and the effect has been greatly to increase capital. Plank roads are a new feature. It appears that the first plank road in Canada was laid down in 1826, and in New York in 1837; but it is only within the last four years that they have been much prosecuted. There now exists, of plank roads in operation, as follows:

Miles. Cost per mile. 442 $1,750 $773,500 New York, 2,106 1,883

"Very nearly four millions of dollars have been expended in New York upon these roads, and the resulting advantages are immense. The roads have all been subscribed for by individuals. and all pay handsome dividends. For instance, the Troy and Lansinburg road pays ten per cent., semi-annual; the Utica and Burlington, twenty per cent.; and we believe none in operation pay less than ten per cent., and none of the stocks can be bought in the market. "The importance of plank roads in farming regions become self-evident when it is stated, that on the Salina road a two-horse team drew six tons of iron twelve miles, without unusual strain. Four and a half tons is an ordinary load, and a team will travel with it eight hours per day, four miles an hour, day after day. A farmer in a heavy country stated that the tolls paid saved themselves in the labor of cleaning regions become self-evident when it is stated, paid saved themselves in the labor of cleaning horses. In all locations where these roads are in operation, land rises greatly in value. On the Salina road, farm-land rose from $9 to $15 per acre; and, on the Syracuse road, the inrease was $10 per acre. It will be observed that amount of property equal to $4,000,000, bearing a high rate of interest, has been created, and that that property has added, in addition, several millions to the value of the land through which it runs, and that all this property is mere saving from the old cost of transportation.

THAT MOCKING-BIRD TIS said that Poetry can move
The very Flowers and Trees to love;
That all Creation feels its sway,
And all its mandates must obey.

A Mocking-Bird, with rural note,
Sweet warbling from his mystic throat,
With twinkling eye and bill, will tell
Where, on Penn avenue. I dwell;
But, 'less too modest he should be,
Below, directions you will see.

In GILBERT has opened an office in Washington city, where he will give his prompt attention to all those who will favor him with the agency to sell farms in Virginia, Maryland, or the District of Columbia. Having followed farming heretofore, and being a northerner by birth, he can appreciate the wants of such as come from the North for the purpose of locating farms in this vicinity. He has the agency to sell a goodly number of farms in Virginia, and those coming from the North would do well to call, before purchasing, at his residence on Pennsylvania avenue, first square west of the Capitol Gate.
